

Used Motor Oil

Used motor oil can contain such contaminants as lead, magnesium, copper, zinc, chromium, arsenic, chlorides, cadmium, and chlorinated compounds. Oil poured down drains or onto the ground can work its way into our ground and surface waters and cause serious pollution. One gallon of used oil can foul a million gallons of drinking water. Federal reports indicate that used motor oil accounts for more than 40 percent of the total oil pollution of our nation's harbors and waterways.

Buy Re-refined Oil

Many of the industries that use virgin oil also use recycled or re-refined oil. According to the American Petroleum Institute, of the nearly 750 million gallons of used oil collected in the U.S. each year, 43% is used in asphalt plants, 12% is used to generate electricity and 14% is re-refined to virgin conditions. The remainder is used for fuel or in other industries, such as steel and paper mills. Coca-Cola, United Parcel Service, the California Highway Patrol, the U.S. military and even NASCAR use re-refined oil in their vehicles. So next time you change your oil, close the loop and choose re-refined.
